"Kinsearching"

Good news---"Kinsearching" is now on the internet!

The home page is <http://freepages.genealogy.rootsweb.com/~kinsearching>.

All July and August columns went online this week. It will continue to be published on Sundays. I hope that you will enjoy reading the columns and that you find interesting and useful information.

Since "Kinsearching" is new to the internet, people do not know that it is again available. If you know of others interested in the column, I would greatly appreciate your help in spreading the word about it. Thanks for reading "Kinsearching" when it appeared in the Jacksonville newspaper. I hope your support will continue.

Thank you,

Marleta Childs

Microfilm Changes at the National Archives

Washington, DC . . . The National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) announces two major changes in microfilm policies: online ordering and price increases.

Order Online! Expanded to Include Microfilm

For the first time, researchers can now order NARA microfilm online. On September 12, NARA's microfilm publications catalog was added to Order Online!, vastly expanding online reference and ordering capabilities. Researchers now can search this microfilm catalog online to (1) Obtain full descriptions, (2) Review and download descriptive pamphlets and roll lists, (3) Find out if an item is available for sale and/or rent, (4) Find viewing locations, and (5) Purchase rolls with a credit card.

NARA's Order Online! is a secure, "one-stop" way to research and request reproductions of microfilm (and certain other types of records), and pay for these materials with most major credit cards. Additional records available include Census pages, Land Records, Compiled Military Service and Pension Records, Passenger Arrival Records, and Eastern Cherokee Applications. For more information, see: www.archives.gov/research/order/orderonline.html.

Microfilm Price Increase

To keep up with ever-increasing costs, the National Archives will raise prices for the first time since 1996. Effective October 1, 2005, the price of National Archives black-and-white microfilm will be $65 per roll ($68 per roll for foreign orders). The new price for color microfilm will be $82 per roll ($85 per roll for foreign orders). Microfiche prices are not affected. NARA has 19 regional records facilities across the country, from Anchorage to Alaska, in addition to 11 Presidential libraries (and 1 Presidential Materials Project). Research Room hours vary at different locations. Please call or check www.archives.gov for specific information.

THE METHODIST MARCH IN JACKSONVILLE, TEXAS

A History of First United Methodist Church
1865 – 2005

The long-awaited history of First United Methodist Church will arrive from the publisher later this month. It covers significant people and events in the life of this church over the last 170 years. The book was compiled by a number of contributors, following the lead of John Allen Templeton, whose efforts began in 1988. Since that early beginning, the Church History Committee, chaired by May Lou Meyers, has worked intensively over the last several years to complete this tribute to John Allen’s vision.

Chapters cover Methodism’s early beginnings in Texas, the history of the congregation, its treasures, the roles of music, Christian Education, ministry and outreach, the work of Women, Youth and Auxiliary organizations, milestones and events, leadership beyond the local church, and a look into the future. Appendices include a photo gallery of former pastors and a listing of organizations within the church. A complete index is provided, referring readers to the people, places and events in the history of the church – about 1,200 entries in all.

Pre-publication price for this 200 page hard-back book is $20 per copy through December 7, 2005. Post-publication price is $25.

John H. Dement Family

From other side, numbers in circles.

1 John H stated on Census, b KY.

2 John J death, last baby b 1848 in MS, two girls married in Itawambe C., MS, in 1846 and 1848. Elizabeth on the 1850 Census in Limestone Co., AL. Her name was listed as DENNETT, but she has all the right children and because she did not read or write, it was mis-pelled.

7 Elizabeth was part Indian. Charlotte Dement Darden, 6th child of Stephen H and Susan Garner Dement, said she was 1/8th Indian. (Her *dau-in-law is a friend of mine). That would make Stephen or James 1/4th and their mother Elizabeth 1/2 Indian.
*Bernice Darden did a lot of work on these.

James P m Susan Garner. Their children were John Andrew. Mary J., who died at age 3, and Sallie, who married Anderson Sides in Cherokee Co., Texas.

James P. and Stephen were in the Civil War together. After James P. was killed, Stephen came back to Texas and married Susan.

John Andrew married Sallie Zackery first. After she died he married Martha Melissa HARRIS, and they were my Grandparents.

Are you from the Andrew Jackson HENDERSON Family? If so you are one of our DEMENT cousins also.

Thomas M and Rachel, 6th child of Charles Gilbert DEMENT, and Benjamin and Rebecca, 7th, and Robert the 4th, and all of these came to Cherokee Co., Texas. We believe James and Stephen were nephews of these three brothers, was one reason they came here.

Grandpa, John Andrew, was about 5 years old when they came to Texas. He said there were 13 families that came over. I don't know who they all were, but the Garners must have been part of them. They lived near the Elk and Tenn. rivers, and must have come down by boat, or barge, and the little girl, Mary J. died on the way and they buried her by the river when they left the river.

We believe John H. was Charles Gilbert and Frances HARRIS DEMENTS first child. He was the right age, and lived so close, we just haven't found a document to prove it. The Marriages for earliest to 1831 were lost in the Civil War, for Limestone County, so we can't find that date either.

Research Paths and Byways
Frieze, Kersey, and Inkle

by Patricia Law Hatcher, FASG

No, Frieze, Kersey, and Inkle is not a law firm--at least not one that I know of.

I try, but I still seem to cling to an overly simplistic image of my ancestors' lives. This time it was an index that pointed out my deficiency to me.

Probate inventories are an excellent tool for learning about our ancestors. If we are wise, we examine not only the inventories for members of our own families, but also those for their neighbors. Inventories can be tough to work with. The handwriting is a style with which we are not comfortable. Spelling is varied, to say the least. And since we are seeing just nouns with an occasional adjective thrown in, it is not possible to fill in the blanks for difficult words as we can with deeds and wills.

Furthermore, we don't know what they are talking about. The words may be words we know, but they don't make sense in the context of an inventory. Or we may be able to read every letter clearly, without a clue as to what the resulting word means.

Sometimes we are lucky enough to be working in a time and locality in which some dedicated historian or genealogist has patiently deciphered those words for us. I think people who publish good abstracts and transcripts are the angels of the genealogical world. They spend hours becoming familiar with the handwriting of a period, the handwriting of a particular scribe, and the standard terminologies. Thank you, thank you, thank you.

The probate records for Essex County, Massachusetts, one of the early areas of American settlement, were published nine decades ago. They are a great help to those of us with Puritan ancestors who came during the Great Migration. But they are also a great help to anyone with seventeenth-century ancestry because this series, like a number of New England probate publications, does not quit with names and dates and wills and administrations. It lists every item in the inventories. Taken together, these give us a glimpse into the likely possessions of our own ancestors, even if we do not have their inventories.

This particular publication is even more special (if you'll excuse the grammatical impropriety), because the index didn't quit with the names of people either. It also lists subjects. Thus, while checking the index for something related to an upcoming Ancestry Daily News article, I noticed the heading "Cloth." Under that category were over two columns of listings! The listings included terms used in describing articles of clothing or furnishings and those referring to unfinished cloth.

This is the list: baize, barber's stuff, broadcloth, calico, cambric, canvas, cap/cape cloth, challis, cheesecloth, cheny, coifing stuff, cotton and wool, damask, darnacle, darnex, diaper, dimity, dowlas, English goods, felt, filleting, flannel, frieze, fustian, genting, grosgrane, hair cloth, hempen cloth, holland, tufted holland, inkle, inkle mancster, kersey, lawn, linen, broad linen, linsey woolsey, lockrum, manchester, mohair, ossembrike, packing cloth, paragon, penistone, perpetuana, plush, ribbon, ribbon binding, sackcloth, sail cloth, satin, satinesco, say, sempiternum, serge, French serge, shag silk, stammell, stuff, taffety, tamme, tape, tape binding, tapestry, ticking, tow, trucking cloth, velvet, water paragon, woolen, worsted.

What variety! There were familiar terms, but they were far outnumbered by the unfamiliar. And, quite frankly, I didn't really know what the familiar terms meant. How about you? Clearly, it was time for me to learn more.

You can see some of the spelling problems easily: grosgrane for grosgrain, taffety for taffeta. But some are a bit more difficult. For example, ossembrike is surely intended to be osnaburg.

And what are these various fabrics? OK, I've heard of linsey woolsey. I've even seen a length of it. But that doesn't mean I know what it is. Normally I begin my search for the meaning of words with a dictionary. Sure enough, my basic dictionary told me that linsey-woolsey was just what it sounds like, a sturdy fabric of wool and linen or cotton.

Frieze, Kersey, and Inkle

But what about some of those more obscure terms? In this case, I'd just come across a specialized dictionary that was especially helpful. A Dictionary of English Costume 900-1900, by C. Willitt Cunnington and Phillis Cunnington is actually three dictionaries in one. The first concerns clothing, the second concerns cloth, and the third concerns lace. In the early decades of American settlement, all fabric was imported from Europe, primarily England, so English resources are appropriate. Over time, some cloth came to be manufactured here, but much of it continued to be imported, thus the variety in these Massachusetts inventories.

Cloth was often named after the place that was first known for making it or that specialized in especially fine products of a particular type. We have several examples in the list. Worsted, which was a common fabric in early America, is a cloth made of long-stapled wool combed straight and smooth before spinning, first known as cloth of Worthstede. Kersey, another common fabric often used for stockings, is a course woolen cloth with a woven pattern that may have originated in Kersey, Suffolk.

Osnaburg is a linen named for Osnabrueck in Hanover, Germany. I first learned about it when an ancestor of mine bought a length of it in a country store in Virginia in the late 1700s. The word eventually came to be a generic for a certain type of linen. It is still used. I walked into Target shortly after learning of my ancestor's purchase and saw a sign announcing that osnaburg placemats and napkins were on sale.

Manchester is woolen cloth from Manchester, England. Holland is a fine linen originally imported to England from Holland; later the name applied to any fine linen.

There were so many other words to investigate, some of which I'd never seen. Stamell is a good quality worsted or linsey woolsey, generally red. The word derives from the red stamin dye. Frieze refers to a napped or piled woolen cloth, originally Irish.

Then there were words I knew, but whose meaning had changed slightly. Shag was a thick-piled cloth with a nap, generally of worsted, often used for linings. Its opposite might be stuff, which is also a worsted, but distinguished from other woolen clothes by the absence of any nap or pile.

Diaper has nothing to do with babies. I remembered the term from reading Martha Ballard's diary, but didn't know what it was. It is a linen cloth patterned by opposite reflections from its surface.

Then we come to the great mystery. What is inkle? The Cunnington's dictionary came to the rescue. It is a kind of linen tape, sometimes white but usually colored, used as a cheap binding by the lower classes.

Did our ancestors live a simple lifestyle? Maybe. But not one without great variety, even in something as basic as the cloth they used.

Subject: William Ellis

I am desperately seeking information on my ggggrandfather, William Ellis. He was born in 1823 and was married to Martha E. The 1st place I found him was in Hancock County, Alabama in 1850. He stayed in Alabama until the 1900 census. He is then located in Cherokee County, Texas with his wife. There has been rumor that he was Cherokee Indian and I am trying to find this. Did these indians move back to this county years after being forced out? Was there an advantage to moving back? Any help is greatly appreciated!

Subject: Justice Family in Cherokee Co.

I have recently begun researching my grandmother's family and have found that at least one member of this family lived in Cherokee Co. from about 1920 on. Eugene H. Justice b. 1895 MS, d. 1959, probably Cherokee Co., was married to Lula Loraine Richmond b. 1891 TX. This couple had 3 children, that I have found: Ruth Mae, John Howard, and Frances Loveta. Eugene's brother, Jewel Richard Justice, b. 1903 TX, d. 1933, probably in Cherokee Co. Jewel R. Justice was married to Mabel Louise McDaniel, b. 1909 MS, in 1924.

There is a strong possibility that another of Eugene's brothers died in Cherokee Co. John Tom Justice died in 1918, according to the family records that I have. John Tom Justice married about 1912 a Mary <last name unknown>. Any help with her maiden name will be appreciated. Joe Justice b. 1913 Cherokee Co., TX, the son of John Tom Justice, is listed as nephew of Eugene H. Justice in the 1930 Cherokee Co. census. If anyone can offer any assistance with this family, I will be most appreciative. Thanks, Alice F. Permenter
