Notes

Hiram Lee married Mary Causey in Chambers County, Alabama. They had a baby girl who died February 2, 1849 on their way to Texas. She is buried at Shreveport, Louisiana. Mac and Dick were about 4 and 5 years old when they settled in Cherokee County. They bought land near Jacksonville and built a two room log house in which they lived until he could get a larger one built. It was here the two boys grew to manhood.

Hiram Lee was a teacher in his youth. When he reached Texas, good schools were few and far between. And he had two small boys to be educated and education was very important to the McKnights. When they were old enough to go to school they took advantage of the educational facilities available in the neighborhood, aided by their father (Hiram Lee), and got what they could. When these were exhausted, their father (Hiram Lee) who in his youth had had some teaching experience, took over the job of supervising his sons' education. They too, by inheritance and example and training were avid readers. They had been taught to read with maps and dictionary handy and so, in spite of the times in which they lived they both became well-read, well-informed, and well educated for their times. They loved history and geography, and took a vital interest in all the affairs of the world about them, locally and internationally, and made a distinctive contribution to the civic life of the neighborhood in which they lived. They both lived to a ripe old age, Dick nearly 80 and Mack past 80, but their minds remained keen and alert, always quick to see the point in a joke, still reading and keeping up with the affairs of the world until the end.

When the Civil War started, Hiram Lee McKnight was 40 years old. The older boy, Mack, was 17, and the younger boy, Dick, was 16 years of age. All three volunteered. Hiram Lee was called into service April 7, 1862. He entered as Second Lieutenant, but was made 1st Lt. then Captain before end of war. He served first under Captain Thomas R. Bonner, Volunteer Company, 10th Brigade, Confederate States Army.

Mack remained in the area around Rusk or Dialville. Mack married Miss Martha Elizabeth Acker, daughter of Joseph Acker of Pickens Co., N.C. Jan. 3, 1867. And the younger boy soon after married Martha's sister, Rutha Jane Acker, April 16, 1867. There were some children but information on them not available. After Rutha Jane's death Dick married Sarah Mallory, Aug. 25, 1878.

were some children but information on them not available. After Rutha Jane's death Dick married Sarah Mallory, Aug. 25, 1878.

Mack's wife, Martha Elizabeth, was more familiarly known as Dink, or Aunt Dink. They were both dearly loved by the descendants of Dick as well as their own. The most wonderful place to go for a summer visit was their great sprawling county house near Dialville, with its wide hall, big rooms, and long front porch. They had the first telephone most of that generation had ever seen. The old house is still standing, (summer, 1963) and though vacant, looks sturdy yet, as if begging to be repaired and lived in again.

Duran was Capt. of Company I; George M. Fly was the Major, Lt. Col. McGinnis was in command of the Regiment; Colonel John C. Moore was the Commanding Officer.

All served until the end of the way. Mack and Dick were discharged May 15, 1865. But they record that there was very little regularity in dates of discharge of soldiers, due, they supposed, to poor communication at the time. Mack reported that Dick got tired of waiting for transportation home, and set out to walk home -- Galveston to Rusk. Beat Mack home too!
