Editor's Letter

We received the following email from the Texas State Library and Archives Commission.

“The Lorenzo de Zavala State Archives and Library Building, home of the Texas State Library and Archives Commission, is getting a facelift! This is good news for both our customers and our staff, as the 46-year old building has been in great need of renovation. We expect construction work on the two-year renovation to begin in September 2007, but some important changes are afoot now that may impact your research with us. Please read on!

We are pleased that we'll be able to stay open throughout most of the renovation; however, services will be limited, and much of our collection will be moved offsite. As with any construction project, unexpected events may cause us to close for certain brief periods.

We urge researchers to call ahead when planning a trip to our facility. The number is 512-463-5455. With advance notice, the official state records of Texas stored offsite can be retrieved for you. Unfortunately a portion of our collection will be inaccessible during the renovation.

Bookmark <<http://www.tsl.state.tx.us/>> www.tsl.state.tx.us and follow the Renovation News link, which includes a timeline and will be kept current with news about our services throughout the two year project.

Thanks for your patience and understanding as we bring our facilities into the 21st Century.

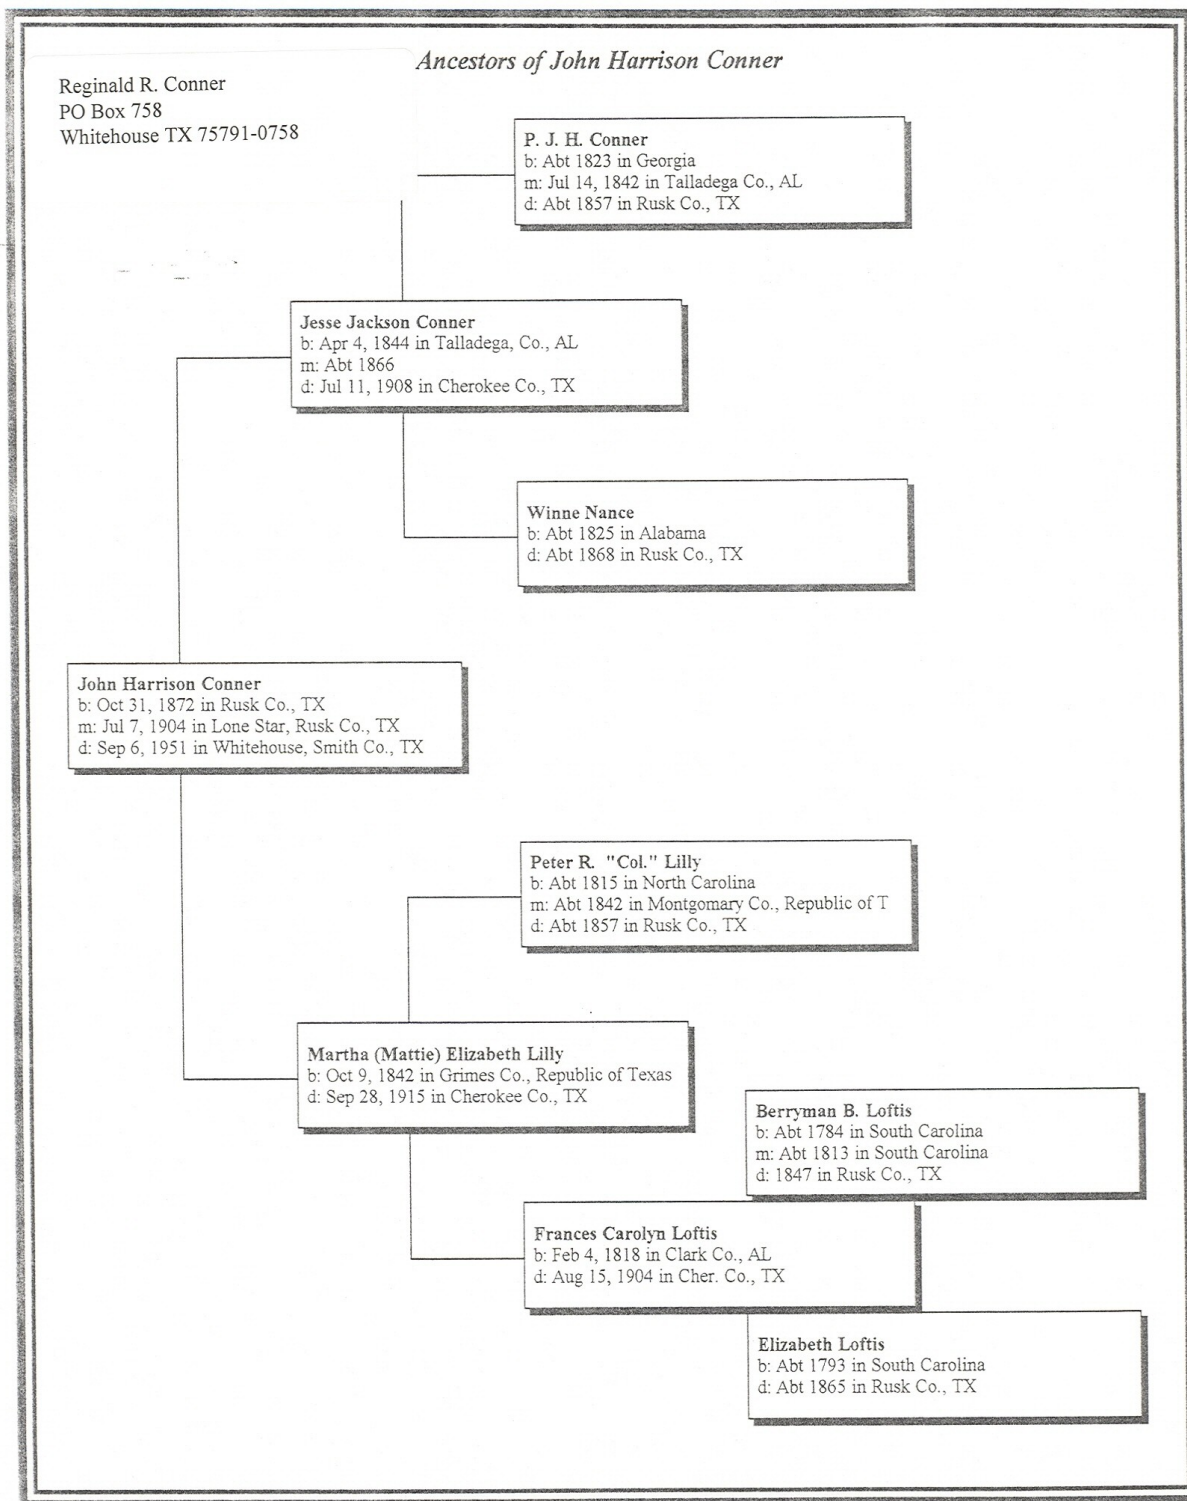

Erica McKewen
Texas State Library and Archives Commission”

Dates and Calendars Through the Ages By Mary Harrell-Sesniak

Over the centuries, the calendar has changed many times, and genealogists quickly learn that a date is not always what it seems. It may surprise you to learn that the year has not always had 365 days, and that the first day in the year was not always 1 January.

In fact, there have been numerous versions of calendars. Some were based upon the motion of the earth around the sun, and others, such as the Islamic calendar, were calculated around the motion of the moon. The Jewish calendar combined both systems; years were associated with the motion of the Earth around the sun, and months corresponded to the motion of the moon. Over time, these and other systems proved to be inexact and required reforming.

The first known calendar dates to the year 4,236 BCE (before the common era), when the Egyptians fashioned one with 365 days. Later ones chosen by Greek and Jewish cultures were set at 354 days, but occasional adjustments were made to conform to the solar year.

Julius Caesar (100-44 BC) constructed a calendar known as the Julian calendar; he decreed that each year should properly be 365 1/4 days long. Since a day couldn't be quartered, three years were set at 365, and the fourth (leap year) at 366.

At that time, the first day of the year was 25 March, a date chosen to coincide with the equinox. Aequus means equal in Latin, and nox night; hence, the equinox is a time when daytime and nighttime theoretically have equal lengths, due to the sun's location above the equator. Caesar recognized that the equinox was out of alignment with the calendar, and made an adjustment in the year 46 BCE for a one-time length of 445 days.

This lengthy calendar year was vastly different from the ones that preceded it. Our ancestors undoubtedly struggled at the timing of the seasons, when to take in the crops, and even when to celebrate holidays. No wonder that 46 BCE became known as Annus Confusionus, or the Year of Confusion.

Christians used the equinox to predict the timing of Easter, but since the system was inexact, it fell out of sequence during the Middle Ages. Pope Gregory VIII made a one-time removal of ten days and converted the first day of the year to 1 January. So to Catholics, the dates of 5-14 October 1582 never existed, but to Protestants, who didn't adopt the Gregorian calendar at that time, they do.

Catholics and Protestants adhered to their individual calendars, but realized differing cultures need a mutually understandable system. If the twelfth month was February in one system and December in another, you had to be of the same culture to understand which month and year was being referred to.

The British solution was double year recording. 25 February 1745 in the Gregorian system would be recorded as "25 11 mo. 1744/45," indicating that the date fell in the eleventh month of 1744 on the Julian calendar. This hybrid system caused problems, and the British Calendar Act of 1751 provided for the conversion from the old style in 1752. The first day of the year was changed from 25 March, and it was necessary to remove more days. 3-13 September 1752 were chosen, the end result being that the fourteenth of September followed the second of September.

Many Protestant countries followed suit within a few years, but some didn't convert until as late as 1775, and the Eastern Orthodox Church never changed. In 1971 they voted to continue using the Julian system.

The Perpetual Hebrew Calendar, which was codified in CE 359, is another independent calendar. It was derived from the Era of Creation, or Era Mundi, and is the official calendar of Israel. This liturgical calendar of Jewish faith records the current year as 5,757.

Dates and Calendars Through the Ages

There have been numerous other calendars, such as the Baha'i, Chinese, Egyptian, French Republic, Indian Civil Calendar, Islamic, Mayan, Quaker, Persian, and Rosetta. All of these pose a dilemma for proper date recording. Researchers are easily lulled into entering erroneous dates, and software programs offer little accommodation for dual systems.

One solution is to notate an event with a comment or abbreviation, such as N.S. (new style) or O.S. (old style). Another is to use a converter. The RootsWeb Library offers several calendar tools, including a perpetual calendar, a table to determine the day of the week for a particular date, and a chart prepared by Barbara R. Tysinger converting the Old and New Style Quaker dates.

To access these, click "ROOTS-L Library," located under the "Other Tools and Resources," heading on the homepage. Then, scroll to "Dates and Calendars."

Another RootsWeb calendar feature is "Calendar by RootsWeb." It creates HTML code to display calendars on websites. "Calendar by RootsWeb" also provides links to user calendars based on a variety of subjects:

http://resources.rootsweb.com/~calendar/cgi-bin/make\_calendar.cgi

Outside of RootsWeb, you'll find numerous sites with converters and more on the history of calendars.

One of these is Michael Douma's "WebExhibits," an online museum, with exhibits "that encourage people to ask questions and examine issues from several points of view." His "Calendars Through the Ages" page can be found at:

<http://webexhibits.org/calendars/timeline.html>

Jewish calendar conversion tools, including "Deciphering Hebrew Tombstone Dates in One Step" and the "Sunrise Sunset Tool," are at Stephen Morse's website:

<http://stevemorse.org/index.html> <http://stevemorse.org/jcal/jcal.html>

Swarthmore Friends Historical Library gives details on Quaker dates and an explanation of why these dates were numbered, but not named:

<http://www.swarthmore.edu/x7968.xml>

John Walker, the founder of Autodesk, Inc. and co-author of AutoCad, has published a variety of converters at his "Formilab" website. In addition to Jewish, French Republic, Mayan, and Persian converters, there is an explanation of how spreadsheet dates are calculated in Excel.
